Introduction: There was a great demand for English and for professionals who mastered it well in the modern world, comprehensive study of it is thorough all skills requires formation. In order to master English at or near the level of native speakers, teachers should organize exercises, tasks and lessons aimed at mastering all language skills in the educational process and will need to act as a facilitator rather than a traditional teacher in the language learning process. These language skills are: listening comprehension, speaking, reading, writing. Each of these skills is important to achieving the desired goal of language learning. Therefore, their mastery and development remains one of the necessary tasks of today. Listening comprehension and reading are considered passive skills because they do not create language material, but rather they facilitate the acquisition of material created by others. Speaking and writing are active skills because students express their thoughts using language material in the form of spoken or written sentences. Thus, active and passive skills are not displayed at the same time. Listening is required before speaking, reading before writing [1].

Nowadays, place and influence of English language is boosted in the world community. It is in demand in our country as well should be studied. Learning English plays a key role in this. It is important to fully master each of the four skills to be acquired earns. It's no secret that today's youth are less engaged in writing. Because they have Internet-connected smartphones and other electronic devices at their fingertips that provide ready-made texts and instant responses [2]. They don't spend their valuable time developing their writing skills. Rather, they are spending their time searching for works done (written) by others. It is also clear that students with well-developed writing skills are more successful than others in expressing their independent opinions and achieving their goals.

Main body: Writing is one of the most difficult language skills. Includes writing takes many components. Teaching writing is the most important thing for teachers one of the tasks, because in writing spelling rules, grammar, lexical content. A number of important aspects of language such as the logical sequence of thoughts are shown will be. Grammatical construction, content, spelling and pronunciation of English from Uzbek it is a bit difficult to learn because it differs in several aspects, such as the rules it's sure to be difficult. The fact that there are 26 letters and 44 sounds in the English language alone makes learning to spell words more difficult. Writing is the language is an exhibition tool reflecting the graphological and grammatical construction. In this means, students should have a clear idea of the grammatical devices, words and phrases, and graphic system that they want to use in the writing process. This imagination can be formed only with the help of a teacher and as a result of hard work. In the modern world, most correspondence is done electronically [3]. However, most exams are written by hand being received through. That is, the written parts of the exams are being done by "drawing the sounds" as the French writer Voltaire said
