According to this statement, we should note that in the process of teaching and learning we are understood what the relationship between the teachers and students should do. We also have to determine in advance how to interest young learners in the procedure of learning English language and how to organize the learning process that will be created with them. One of the most important aspects of the profession is that the teacher must organize a lesson, taking into consideration the psychological characteristics of all his students. Not thinking this matter how hard we are, our lives cannot imagined without teachers and mentors. Because of during the lifetime, teachers and mentors start to guide us to the right way in our early childhood. In all developed countries, even in our country teachers are always in honor. I strongly believe that, the main reason for both the responsibility of this profession and its prestige stand in the highest places is due to their inconspicuous but very hard work. As a teacher, I started my first lesson by using interactive methods like dividing the class into several groups and gave them tasks that belonged to the new topic. On that day, I understood that, teaching is the most interesting and difficult profession in the world. Well, teachers should realize how to teach and what to teach, with knowing the way of teaching students. It is not secret that, if doctors make mistake it will be harmful for patient only, however, if teachers make mistake that will affect to the next generation. Escaping from this kind of issue, teachers have to prepare their lessons with using new technological tools to determine the age and individuality of students.

We can face to some big problems that teachers should solve. First of all, how teachers organize the teaching and learning process?

Of course we take a group of students of some level as an example and consume them closely. When it is time to compare English language with other subjects, learning English is a bit difficult but a very enjoyable subject for young generation. If we want to further deepen the love of language for young learners, we must able to explain to them in what historical periods the language that is being studied has come to fruition. It should be noticed that, in addition to teaching English language and the assimilation of the culture of this language into the minds of students will certainly lead to a successful results of the teaching-learning process. When learning English, students are faced with a variety of problematic situations. As an example, young generation cannot understand the differences of traditions or cultural, social life in England and Uzbekistan. According to the history of teaching languages, there are many teaching methods and techniques; moreover, some of them are really easily approachable and easy to learn. Language teaching methods are reliant on and affected by various hypothesis of language learning process. The English language is one of the major emerging languages that everyone wants to take in and enormous technologies have come out to grasp it.

Secondly, teachers should think of different methods for teaching English language. The most searched list of teaching methodologies we could use for elementary level of students is general way of teaching. An approach effective for a teacher may not certainly be useful for another that is why every method uses various tools and methodological ways for achieving general educational goals. Learning the rules of the grammar is the main part of learning language, because we cannot learn the language without using certain rules of it. So, teachers should realize how to teach grammar and what way will start for young learners. As an example teacher will start to teach grammar by using the parts of speech, like: nouns, pronouns, adjectives, adverbs, verbs, numerals. And also auxiliary verbs to be, to do and to have.

Auxiliary Verbs	“To be”			“To do”		“To have”
Present Tense	Am	Is	Are	Do	Does	Have	Has

Past Tense	Was	Were	Did	Had
Past Participle	Been		Done	Had

In conclusion I should mention that, in every field of life we are faced to several issues. However teaching and learning process also has its own way to understand and realize. I hope that new techniques will help you to consume about English language. We should learn the language with learning English history, lifestyle, politics and others. In my opinion this way will useful for young generation.
