INTRODUCTION

Knowledge arises from the fact that people know things and phenomena in objective existence, the laws of nature and society. That is why knowledge is a product of knowledge. The knowledge that a person has in life changes over the course of historical development, is filled with new knowledge, and a person's knowledge of things and events grows deeper, clearer, and clearer. All knowledge is passed down from generation to generation through oral and written speech and is assimilated by people. At this point, the question arises: We know that social networks are becoming more and more important in our daily lives, and at the same time, knowing and learning a foreign language is becoming faster and more perfect.

All applications for learning English are divided into two types: complex and targeted. Comprehensive applications cover all aspects of the language: reading, speaking, writing and listening. Along with independent learning, you can communicate with a representative of the nation who speaks that language. The convenience of such super applications is that if you are tired of listening and analyzing pre-recorded dialogues, you can read stories about Sherlock Holmes or start keeping a personal diary in English. This will not only save you from the suffocating situation in the subway and during traffic, but will also bring significant benefits in a short time. The second type is applications that develop certain language skills. For example, Grammarly corrects grammar mistakes as you type, while the recently hyped game Wordle improves vocabulary. Elsa Speak and Rosetta Stone help improve pronunciation and reduce accent, IELTS Prep app and IELTS Exam Preparation.

Nowadays, it is not necessary to go to the library to look for a book to learn a foreign language, that is, English. Due to the development of social networks, we can find the books we need in online libraries. Living in Uzbekistan, many students learn a foreign language quickly, the reason for this is the development of social networks. A great example of the role of social networks in making learning a foreign language, i.e. English, fast and convenient, students in Uzbekistan can study at foreign universities in the online education system, students spend their daily time on the Internet, phone, computer and learn a foreign language without going to a foreign country. it is far from time and many other expenses. There are many opportunities for young people who are learning English, they can learn English on the phone, the Booknomy book, which is used by all the young people, is also very good. In this book, studying English daily at home can improve the level of knowledge, and this is a great achievement.

In addition, if we take the year 2020 due to covid-19, which is spreading in our country, but also in the whole world, even in that period, students who are hungry for knowledge in our country did not stop studying. If the development of social networks is not as it is now, attending an English learning center or a class of a certain teacher will take time and money, for example, going to the library to search for a new word and finding an English book, but nowadays, social networks are used to do everything quickly and easily.

Our use of social networks today makes it easier to learn a foreign language, but we should mention not only its positive but also negative aspects, the reason is that not everyone uses them positively, and these social networks, which are very necessary for us, are very harmful for some people. We should pay attention to the use of social networks, for example, I can compare professional taste buds to a kitchen tool that we use every day at home, that is, a knife. but if we use this knife correctly, we can get injured, and this is the negative side, social networks are the same, how much we use it correctly.

CONCLUSION

A teacher should know not only the laws of the subject he teaches, but also himself laws of education and training (teaching, teaching, training), knowledge what is the process of knowledge reduction, how does the student flow. Observations show this, but we must say that in this article, we are not the teachers, but social networks are important, and how the student improves in learning depends on him. The real purpose of the teacher is interpersonal relations, behavior, subtle examples as a result of communication breakdowns and anxiety, etc. For for example, information about the ethics and future of student learning is a social issue family environment is an economic issue that is discussed after the way of life of the society feedback (hidden by mastery level or specific student behavior).
